Minis still in

After just three days of classes at West Texas State University, it's not hard for the male population to tell that despite rumors to the contrary, the midi-skirt has not come to roost on campus. The mini is still queen, as attest the above coeds in their trips across campus. Many pant-suits are also making appearances.

Board To Discuss Alternatives To Vacant Building Tax Problem

Members of Canyon's board of equalization will meet with city officials and the city attorney today to decide how to rectify what some have called an unconstitutional action--lowering taxes on vacant buildings.

Dr. Burwell Southern, chairman of the equalization board, said the officials will meet at 1 p.m. at city hall.

He said the meeting will be to "see what we need to do" to work out the thorny problem concerning taxes on vacant buildings.

City commissioners last week tabled approval of the city tax roll pending further equalization board action.

Commissioner Ken Olsen was critical of the board's action in lowering the taxes--some by as much as 25 per cent--on vacant buildings in Canyon.

Olsen said he felt the lowering of the taxes "arbitrary, improper and discriminatory."

He was joined in his questioning of the legality of the board's move by City Attorney Elton Cox.

Cox said taxes on real property must be determined according to the property's fair market value.

The equalization board took action on lowering the taxes for vacant buildings in April.

CHS Eagles Will Meet Hereford

Canyon's Eagles may be light-weights in size, but they're heavy-weights in spirit and they proved it Friday night against Brownfield.

They hope to prove it again as they go against an arch-rival opponent tonight.

The Eagles meet Hereford at 5 p.m. today on the high school field.

The game will only be a scrimmage, but the Eagles will no doubt remember the 13-0 beating they took at the hands of Hereford last fall.

Hereford this year is a AAAA team, moving from Canyon's district for the first time this season.

The classification probably won't make that much difference. Hereford could be potentially tough in any league.

Even with the rivalry, the use of tonight's game will not be in who can beat who, but in what Eagle Coach Dunny Goode can learn of his players and what his players can learn from battlefield experience.

In last week's scrimmage, Goode learned he has a fair passing attack.

The two Eagle quarterbacks, Mike Swatzel and Chuck Wright, completed 17 of 27 for 301 yards and six touchdowns. Only one was

Registration Slows At WT

Late registrations raised the fall semester enrollment at West Texas State University to 7,838 by mid-week, Dr. Donald Cates, dean of admissions and registrar, said.

This compared to an all-time high of 7,935 for the fall semester last year. However, this fall's registrations are the second highest of record for the university.

Late registration ends at noon Saturday.

The initial figures indicate that WTSU's enrollment may not reach the level anticipated by officials.

Dr. Cates had predicted the university would receive an enrollment of nearly 8,500 students. Unless many students sign up in the next six days, the figure will be far less than that estimate.

WTSU has yet to break the 8,000 figure in enrollment.

Cates said there were at least three causes for the lower number of registrations this fall.

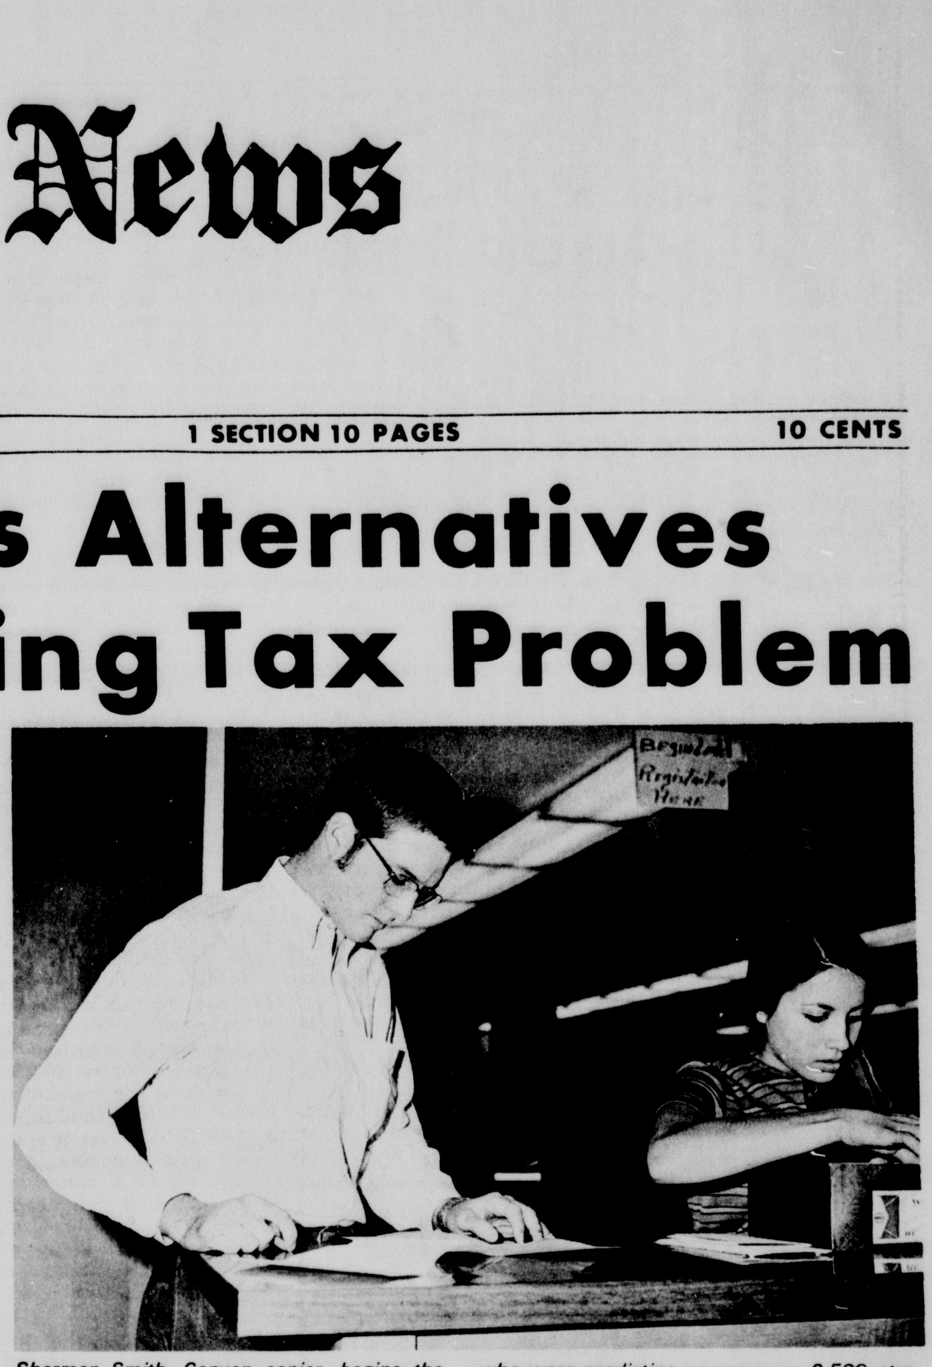
They were revised Selective Service regulations, lack of available housing in Canyon and on campus and the increased demand for vocational school-trained young men and women.

"If we had the housing, we could have enrolled another 500 students," Cates said.

The university has under construction two residence halls to accommodate a total of 502 men and women students. The dormitories are expected to be ready for occupancy next fall.

Cates said he felt some prospective students chose a vocational school education over a four-year institution because West Texas State does not offer as wide a vocational program of courses.

"Since we could not meet their needs, we are glad they have gone to other schools such as Amarillo College and the new Texas State Technical Institute," he said.



Sherman Smith, Canyon senior, begins the lengthy procedure of late registration at West Texas State University. Enrollment at the university has not met expectations of officials, who were predicting as many as 8,500 students this fall. Late registration continues for 10 days.

Most Celebrate Mon. Holiday

Many Canyon residents will enjoy their last summer fling before fall sets in this weekend as Labor Day is celebrated in the city.

For many, the Monday holiday provides a last chance to get away for a while before settling down to a long stretch before Thanksgiving.

Canyon Independent Schools will be closed Monday and youngsters will enjoy their first three-day vacation of the school year.

Students at West Texas State University are not so lucky. Classes will be held as usual Monday. A university spokesman said the holiday will not be recognized due to the early start WTSU is making this fall.

Many county and city offices will be closed for the holiday.

City Hall will be closed as will the county tax assessor-collector's offices in both Amarillo and Canyon. The county clerk's office will be closed, also.

The Canyon Post Office will be closed Monday. Post-

Kerbel Pleased With Buffaloes

West Texas State University's football squad climaxed a week of two-a-day drills with a scrimmage session Saturday and dropped back to one-a-day sessions this week when school started.

Coach Joe Kerbel is pleased with the work of his team to this point, but says the Buffaloes are a long way from the progress level he would like for the opening game Sept. 19 in Beaumont against the Lamar Tech Cardinals.

The head Buffalo coach was impressed with several items during the scrimmage session, including the strong quarterbacking of Ed Holwig and the running of Olan Thompson, Ralph Thompson, Ramese Faleafine and Rusty Tucker.

"Ed graded 85 per cent, which is good for a sophomore quarterback at this time of the year," said Kerbel.

Olan Thompson led all of the runners with 333 yards and six touchdowns. In addition, he caught six passes. Kerbel praised the blocking of all of his backs.

Quarterback Clarence Redic and sophomore fullback Jim Albracht were outstanding with their placement kicking. Redic converted on 21 extra point attempts and was true with a 41-yard field goal effort. Albracht booted two 41-yard three-pointers.

Only one player suffered an injury during the Saturday scrimmage. Freshman quarterback Monte Barnes

2 Projects Okayed

Two projects totalling more than $312,000 have been approved for Randall County's roads by the Texas Highway Commission.

Charles W. "Chili" Smith, district engineer for the Texas Highway Department, said one project involves the resurfacing of the southbound lane of U.S. 87 between Canyon and Happy.

The lane, which is 15.7 miles from Canyon's city limits to .3 miles north of Happy, will be covered with an asphaltic concrete overlay. Estimated cost of the project is $155,000.

Other approved project involves the resurfacing and modernization of Washington Street from Loop 335 in North Randall County to

Good Sorghum Yields Seen On Irrigated Fields Here

An early harvest for irrigated grain sorghum is predicted in Randall County this fall, but little yield is anticipated from dry-land sorghum fields.

That is the feeling of County Agent John Brazzil.

"We will probably have a few fields of sorghum harvested in September this year," he said. "But, most of the harvest will take place as usual in October."

Brazzil said the outlook for grain sorghum raised on irrigated land is good. Average to good yields are expected. About 35,000 acres in the county are used to grow irrigated sorghum.

The yield of dryland sorghum is another story, though, Brazzil said. He predicts very little dryland grain will be harvested.

"Few fields will make grain," he said.

Brazzil said the prolonged hot and dry weather has made a significant dent in the dryland crop.

Most dryland sorghum farmers, he said, will be faced with a decision of whether the effort, time and expense involved in harvesting their crops will equal the yield.

He anticipates most dryland farmers will decide to leave the crop and use it for cattle grazing.

Even with the pending sorghum harvest, the main concerns for many farmers in the county is not grain sorghum, but wheat.

Brazzil said more than 100,000 acres in the county are prepared now for planting of fall wheat for grazing.

"But, the ground is dry," the agent said. "Very few spots in the county have had enough rain to seed. The percentage is very low in the county."

Brazzil said time is running out to obtain enough ground water to plant wheat for fall grazing. He noted that wheat could be planted late in the fall to benefit winter grazing.

"We still must have a good shower," he said. "Not just a small rain."

Farmers who have been used to feeding cattle through the winter on hay will have a tough time this year, he noted, since the lack of moisture has severly hampered hay planting and growth.

The fate of feeding thousands of head of cattle during the winter here rests in the hands of the weather.

Brazzil said a good rain in the immediate future could make the difference in the feeding of the cattle.

Brazzil said other money crops in Randall County look good this year.

He said cotton, sugar beets and soybeans will make good yields.

Arson Suspected In House Fire

Arson is suspected as the cause of a fire Sunday morning which destroyed a two-story home on the VFW Road.

The frame house, owned by W.A. Manning of Norman, Okla., was unoccupied. It is located about 5 miles north of the city.

Fire Chief Jack Jennings said he feels arsonists set the blaze, which leveled the house.

"There was nobody living there," he said. "There were no gas or electrical connections. Fires just don't set themselves."

Jennings said the house had recently been moved from a location on U.S. 87 near Canyon and was still sitting on steel moving beams. The beams were melted and warped by the heat of the fire.

Five units of the Canyon Fire Department fought the blaze from about 5 a.m. until after 10 a.m. Sunday.

"It was completely burned down when we got there," Jennings said.

He speculated the fire was set about 4:30 a.m.

No evidence of arson was found at the scene.

Two other vacant houses in the area surrounding Canyon have burned under similar circumstances in three years.

One, owned by W.L. Browning about 5 miles south of the cityon the high school road, was destroyed by fire. Arson is suspected cause. No gas or electrical connections were made to the house. No evidence of arson was found.

Another house, located just off U.S. 87 about 5 miles south of Canyon, was also burned during the night. It, too, had no gas or electrical connecttions.

Ballots Mailed Farmers For ASC Committees

Randall County farmers are now receiving in the mail ballots for election of ASC committees, according to Donald F. Lloyd, county executive director for the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Ballots should be returned to the ASCS office in Canyon by Sept. 11, Lloyd reported.

In each of seven ASC communities in the county eligible farmer voters will elect three committeemen and two alternates to serve for one year.

The community committees aid the County ASC Committee in administering government farm programs. The community committeemen also elect members and choose officers for the county committee.

Lloyd stressed that voters may vote for only three persons for community committees. He said it is important that farmers know they are to vote for only three because in the past they have voted for five candidates.

Voters may select candidates listed on the ballot or may write in names. Lloyd pointed out that the elections are by secret ballot.

"When a voter has marked his ballot, he should fold it and seal it inside the plain envelope he received along with the ballot," Lloyd said. "He should put the plain envelope inside the envelope addressed to the ASCS office and seal that envelope.

"Then he should sign and date the outer envelope on the back. This is very important because his ballot cannot be counted unless he has signed and dated the outer envelope.

"This dual envelope system is for the voters' protection," Lloyd explained. "The plain envelope guarantees a secret ballot. The outer envelope insures that only eligible voters vote. Before the votes are counted, the plain envelopes are removed from the outer envelopes and shuffled to make it impossible to identify any indivi-

America's second revolutionary war is under way.

In less than eight months this year more than a dozen policemen have been shot down in cold blood by terrorists. Police officers are being ambushed, shot by snipers or blown up by booby traps. Several have been wounded or killed in shoot outs with revolutionaries.

Senator John McClellan, chairman of a committee investigating guerilla warfare against police had this to say in an interview with a national news magazine:

"The revolutionary is trying to destroy or demoralize the 'establishment' through chaos, fear and terror. And the police departments represent the first barrier against that revolutionary."

These revolutionaries have publically stated that they intend to deprive the country of its natural leaders. Look for assasinations of college presidents, mayors and police chiefs.

This is an old communist tactic used effectively during the Russian revolution. The object is to spread terror and paralyze resistance.

Sad as it may be the antidote to this type of operation is force against force. In revolution due process of law always suffers. The big question may well be whether our republic can survive even if we put down the terrorists.

I read the other day where the leftist radicals are comparing American industry to the Krupps of Germany — branding all as evil, of course.

The Krupps supplied the muscle for Germany's war machine in two conflicts and were branded war criminals at the end of World War II.

American industry is just as bad, say the leftists, for supplying war material for the US fighting forces.

There is a notable difference. The Krupps used slave labor and worked people until they died of exhaustion. It was for this that they were branded as criminals at Nuremberg.

The United States has a right to manufacture the means to protect itself. The industries who are providing the machines necessary for this mission are performing a patriotic duty.

One of the most interesting races in years is shaping up in the campaign for the 31st Senatorial District Senate seat.

Oofie Abraham probably is one of the best known, best liked candidates in the Panhandle. Max Sherman was virtually unknown before he announced his candidacy.

The toughest obstacle Oofie has in his way is selling the public that a Republican can be an effective state senator. You can bet that Sherman will hammer at the effectiveness angle from the time he opens his campaign until the November election. Sherman, of course, is a Democrat.

I think the only way Texas is going to be converted into a two-party system is for the Republicans to field candidates in every district in the state for legislature while putting candidates into the field for major state offices at the same time.

Until the GOP can come up with at least a chance to control or almost control the legislature, it is going to meet that effectiveness argument at every corner.

I had a note this week from Alice Ruth Standley down in Austin. She sent me a clipping from the Austin American-Statesman which quoted the Lockhart paper summing up a new dress and grooming code for the Lockhart public school system this way:

"Generally it can be said that the school requirements are that young ladies dress like young ladies; young men dress like young men, and that the difference between the two be readily apparent to the untrained eye."

Baldwin Stribling, pastor of First Presbyterian Church, says he made his first dollar when he was 13 years old by lifting feed sacks.

"I spent it all taking a girl on a date," he remembers. As the song says, won't they ever, ever learn.

W.A. Warren, former mayor and owner of Warren's, said he made his first quarter burning cotton stalks for a neighbor.

"I raked the stalks up with a pitch fork and got blistered from head to toe burning them," Warren relates. "I must have worked 12 hours for that quarter."

13 Cars In Wrecks

Thirteen cars, all driven by students at West Texas State University, were involved in accidents before 8 a.m. Monday, the first day of classes at the university.

The accidents occurred on 23rd Street. Four occurred inside the north city limits. The others were just outside the north city limits on U.S. 87.

Chief of Police Calvin Costley said one woman student suffered a whip-lash injury.

The week began with traffic jams at each major intersection nearing WTSU.

Costley said cars were backed up bumper-to-bumper just before class Tuesday morning from Spur 48 in north Canyon to the U.S. 60 overpass.

City officials installed a left-turn signal at the Spur 48-23rd Street intersection this summer in hopes of eliminating some traffic jams.

But, Costley said he expects to have a policeman stationed at the intersection about two months to control traffic.

Five Scouts To Receive High Award

Five Boy Scouts will receive God and Country awards Sunday at 10:00 a.m. in the Presbyterian Church.

The boys who have completed church related and community work and have achieved 1st class Scout ratings are: Mark Read, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Read; Robert Counseller, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Counseller; Jay and Denny Bryan, sons of Dr. and Mrs. J. Manly Bryan; and Roy Markham, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joe Markham.

The entire morning service will center around the God and Country awards, Reverand Stribling stated, and special guests for the service will be troops #31 and #66 and Explorer Pack #66.

The members of the examining committee included Rev. Stribling, Roland Black and Don Olson.

Miller Now On Med Staff In Hillsboro

David Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Miller, has joined the staff of the Family Diagnostic Medical Center and Grant Buie Hospital in Hillsboro.

Miller received his B.S. degree from WTSU in 1960 and graduated from the University of Texas Medical School at Dallas in 1964. He served 4 years in the U.S. Navy Medical Corps. As senior medical officer, on tour of duty in Viet Nam, Miller was in charge of the civilian hospital in Hoe An where he headed a team of four American and two Vietnamese doctors.

"Viet Nam is a fertile country with plenty of food and natural resources. The main health problem is sanitation," Miller reported.

Miller and his wife, Lydia, live at 109 Falcon Street in Hillsboro with their two children, Davy, 5 and Wendy, 3.

City Commission Meets Tonight

Canyon's city commission meets at 7 p.m. today in the city hall annex.

Only item on the agenda is consideration of any business pertaining to a final plat submitted by Frank Jones last week.

The plat was approved by commissioners for construction of a 100-unit apartment complex in Hunsley Hills.

News Brief

Allen E. McBride, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. McBride of Wildorado, left recently for the Naval Training Center in San Diego, California. He attended Canyon and Vega High School, graduating from Vega in May of this year.

Our World

BY ANN BROWN

The new school year should be met with joy and appreciation on the part of students, for the privilege of learning more effective ways of thinking, problem solving, and productivity. And teachers should greet their classes with zeal and enthusiasm, eager to inspire the students to acquire an education.

However, many students enter the classroom with belliberence or apprehension. and many teachers meet them with defensive fear. What brought about this lamentable situation in our educational system?

Part of the problem is surely unrealistic expectations on the part of many parents, students, and teachers. There is no magic in the classroom to transform unruly, insolent, rebellious students of any age into well-behaved scholars.

If parents cannot control their children, they need not expect teachers to do so. If parents do not teach their little ones to respect duly constituted authority, they need not expect them to acquire productive knowledge.

Americans are acutely aware of the value of nutrition. They know the body is the product of the food ingested. The mind is also the product of its nourishment.

Many children grow up expecting immediate gratification of all their desires. Why shouldn't they expect their adult world to be utopian?

Young people are bombarded from every side with propaganda that the government (meaning the taxpayer) should provide protection, and a comfortable standard of living for every man whether or not he abides by any rules or does any work. And everyone should have equal opportunities in the fields of education and employment regardless of differing capacities, abilities, training, or willingness to work. This, of course, is impossible.

Traditionally, it has been the function of the parents to teach adjustment — life as it is, the churches to teach life as it ought to be, and the schools to teach facts, disciplines, and skills.

Schools cannot bridge the gap for all the parents and churches that have failed. Children who have never learned to submit to the authority of parents are not likely to submit to school authorities, and they will probably ignore the churches completely.

Social injustice has been rife since the dawn of mankind. And racial injustice is as old as the races. Yet our vociferous dissidents are not satisfied with our progress in these areas. They seem to want age-old injustices wiped out — not in one generation, but in one day.

For all their demands for peace, love, and justice, the ones who cry loudest for these desired attributes, seem to be doing the least toward attaining them.

Surrounding the campus of U.C. at Berkeley, the streets are lined with hippies. In every block, vacant buildings with windows boarded up offer mute testimony to the hippies' "peace-loving" desires.

The local branch of the Bank of America has replaced beautiful floor-to-ceiling plate glass windows with solid brick masonry. The few "straight" white people remaining in the area live in constant terror.

Hordes of hippies, dressed as insultingly as possible, beg rides from the despised "squares." It is common to see a replica of the American flag sewed on the seat of ragged, dirty jeans. These are college students — products of our homes and our schools.

In their search for the eternal verities we failed to teach them, they may destroy us. Isn't it time we claimed the promise in II Chronicles 7:14?

Milton Morris Resigns Post

Milton "Buff" Morris, longtime West Texas State University director of student financial aids, has resigned that post.

He will remain with the university as head of the Opportunity Plan, Inc., which he founded in 1954.

Clifford Baker, associate director of financial aids, suceeds Morris. Jack Jones, assistant director, will assume Baker's position.

Morris is a native of Gray, Okla. He is a 1934 graduate of WTSU. He received a master's degree from Texas Tech.

He was named executive director of the WTSU ex-students association in 1950.

To Compete

Joe Carrick, a West Texas State University freshman from El Paso, will be one of four Southwest Sectional players competing in the National Junior Davis Cup Challenge Tennis Matches this wekend in Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

Carrick played football and tennis for El Paso Burges High School and will join coach David Kent's tennis squad this fall.

Carrick and the remainder of the Buffalo Tennis squad will compete in the Tri-State Tennis Tournament in Amarillo during the Labor Day weekend.

Charmazel Dudt Finds India Similar To Texas Panhandle

While Charmazel Dudt of India is getting used to the Texas dust and wind, West Texas English students will be making a mental adjustment to the foreign scholar's wit and six-yard silk sari.

"The students must first decide if I'm really a human being. . . That takes them a while," Miss Dudt smiled, "but they soon discover that I walk and talk just like they do."

"I love the Texas sunsets," Miss Dudt said. "They are fantastic!" The amateur photographer takes color slides of the most magnificent ones.

Miss Dudt finds that the Texas Panhandle is similar to India in its flatness. "I miss the trees and greenery, though," she admits. "It's so brown here."

"I do like the dry climate, here," she noted. "In India it's dry most of the year except during July and August and it rains nearly every day. During this period the humidity is 100% and the temperature climbs from 112 to 118 degrees. Winter temperatures average around 35 degrees.

"Air conditioning is just coming into India and it's very expensive," the assistant English professor noted, pointing out that most of the houses are built of thick concrete or brick walls and have high ceilings in order to cool the living area.

"In the winter the homes are heated with a fireplace," she continued. "Electric heat is in the early stages, but again, is too expensive for most of the people."

"Besides," she pointed out, "it's more fun to sit around a fire. . . you certainly can't throw walnut shells into a central heater!"

"In India we eat four meals a day, both the lunch and dinner meals are quite heavy. The four include an afternoon tea time, like the British, and we serve either pastries or deep fried snacks made of dough stuffed with meat or vegetables," Miss Dudt stated.

"The first time I was served a sandwich for lunch over here, I thought 'You're kidding!' "

"Nearly all the meals are highly spiced in India. . ." she noted, mentioning that Columbus was looking for a new route to the Eastern spices more than anything else, when he happened to run into America.

Since being in this country Miss Dudt has been an administrator and counselor to undergraduate women at Ohio State University, lived in Boston, Mass., and traveled in 20 U. S. states.

"My two favorite cities are Washington D.C. and San Antonio. Washington D.C. because it's so alive and borders the North and South, having characteristics of both. I love San Antonio, because it's so green. I also love New York City. . .for about three days! I wouldn't want to live there, though," the traveler said.

"I have been so impressed with the vastness of the land here. The distances are unbelievable, especially in the West," she said.

"When I think of the faith the pioneers must have had to keep going over the next hill and the next, it just overwhelms me. . . I don't think I could have done it," Miss Dudt said warmly. "It makes you feel very humble when you see such vastness."

"Idaho is a gorgeous state, with its rolling hills, farm land, and beautiful colors. I've always associated Idaho with potatoes, I guess, and there's nothing very pretty about a potato!"

"I have been very impressed with the variety of the countryside here. . .it's unbelievable!"

Charmazel Dudt, assistant professor in the WT English department, has many of her six yard silk "saris" sent to her from India.

"Texas is great, I've had a good time here," she said. "The people here are very warm and friendly. Texans are very different from the people in Boston or Ohio, who are much more English and reserved."

In order to describe this difference, she said that if people had an outer wall and an inner wall to their personality then the people in the East would have a "very high outer wall and a low inner wall and the people in Texas would have a very low outer wall and a high inner wall."

In light of culture, Miss Dudt said that "Boston is my kind of town. I like anything that starts at 8:30 at night: ballet, drama, concerts. . . anything."

That 'anything' also includes football, she said, because you just couldn't be at Ohio State very long and not like football. . . and if they don't have it there, there just isn't any!

A recipient of B.A. and M.A. degrees in English from the University of Allahabad in India, Miss Dudt will receive her Ph.D. from Texas Tech University in December.

Hinders' Cow Sets Record

Prairie-Sage Noel Flossy 6706790, a two-year-old Registered Holstein in the herd tested for Louis G. Hinders, Canyon, has produced a noteworthy record of 16,540 lbs. of milk and 600 lbs. of butterfat in 305 days.

The information is made available through the cooperative efforts of the state and local testing associations and Holstein-Friesian Association of America. Dairymen enrolled in the program pay for the service.

This level of production may be compared to the average U. S. dairy cow's estimated annual output of 8,821 lbs. (4,103 quarts) of milk containing 325 lbs. of butterfat. Official testing participation increases the value of the herd and provides recognition for record breaking performance.

'Russians Have No Idea of Western Life,' Says Mobley

BY CAROL CRAIN

Former Canyon High School and WTSU student Curtis Mobley, now a Fullbright scholar, returned to the city from Europe for a week's stay in his hometown before returning to the books.

Mobley, a University of Texas graduate, spent a year at the University of Karsruhe, Germany, traveled through parts of Europe and spent 10 days in Russia.

"Last year, I met people from every country behind the Iron Curtain, except Bulgaria. Most of them were attending the university," Mobley explained.

"The university travel service offers trips all over the world to their students," he continued, remarking that the rates are about one-third of the U.S. cost.

"I spent ten days in Russia with a group of Germans and the entire trip, including meals, flight, and lodging only cost $160 to $170."

The Texas Phi Beta Kappa member pointed out that even though "there is recognizable difference between the free European countries and the ones communist controlled, the difference between Russia and communist Eastern Europe is like night and day!"

"I was very surprised at the difference between Leningrad and East Berlin, for example," he went on. "East Berlin is a rather nice place compared to Russia."

"The East Germans aren't particularly oppressed, the press is run by the government, but actually the people live rather well. They have the attitude that 'this is the way it is', they try to make the best of it and just want to be left alone."

"Now, Czechoslovakia is another story. The country is heavily policed and the people are passively fighting against it. They resent the Russian control and the presence of the troops there more than any other country behind the Iron Curtain."

"Some of my friends from behind the Iron Curtain told me that when Russian troops went into Czechoslavakia in 1968 they didn't even know which country they were in, until they asked at Prague!" Mobley emphasized.

"While in Russia I asked a man about that 1968 incident, and I was told that 'Dubchek had been taken over by the Neo-Nazis and Facists. The power was being taken away from the Czechoslavakian people. The Russians were asked to come in and drive out the reactionaries.' He didn't tell me that it was because the people there were gaining too much freedom!"

"Russia's standard of living is much lower than the other communist controlled countries. The Russian troops stationed in Eastern Europe aren't allowed to go into the cities, but must stay on the Russian bases and are rotated every two months. That way, they don't get a chance to see how much better a life these other countries are living."

"There's lots of industry in Russia, but the manufactured items don't go to the consumer, but to the Russian troops. Steel products, for example, are built into tanks rather than cars."

"People in Russia would come up to you in the street and want to buy your clothes. . .they would grab your jacket or your shirt. It wasn't that they cost too much in Russia, they just couldn't get them. A ball point pen was worth its weight in gold."

"I spent one entire day in the Gum Department Store. It was state-owned, of course. It was about as big as one of our big discount houses. There would be a line of from 20 to 200 people standing in front of an empty table that had a printed sign that said 'shirts'. As soon as some shirts were available a man would come out carrying some under his arm and the people would start grabbing them. They didn't look at the size or anything!" the observer noted.

"There are almost no privately owned cars in Moscow, and although there are 2 million people there, they have only two filling stations. Transportation is supplied mainly by the subways, buses, and taxis."

"In Russia, I had a language barrier that I didn't have in the other countries I visited, but I did find that the people have no idea of what the West is like. At least the Eastern European communists allow professors to travel into the free world and make lectures, even though they had to leave their wives behind the lines for security. I heard professors from Hungary and Rumania at Karsruhe."

"I had to throw away two Time magazines at the Russian border before I could go into the country. There are two Soviet newspapers, one is called 'Truth' and the other is called 'News' (translated) and they can be bought in Europe."

"I asked a Russian why you could buy a Russian newspaper in Europe, but couldn't buy European or American ones there. He said, 'our newspapers are good and are truthful, the western newspapers print lies. If we allowed these western newspapers to come into the country with their lies a few of our people might believe them. Since our papers print the truth as it is there is no use confusing them with lies. Only a few would ever believe such trash anyway!' "

Mobley, who graduated from the University of Texas "with highest honors" and a 4 pt. average, indicated that the Russian trip was one of the highlights of the year.

His impressions of Germany indicated his acute ability to observe and report a foreign way of life.

"You'd never believe that Germany was a Nazi country a few years ago. There's almost no emphasis on showing national patriotism. I was there an entire year and heard the German National Anthem very seldom.

"The young people really want a United Europe and politically are working for it. The people there are well aware of what happened during World War II, and they don't want it to happen there again."

"There are a few George Wallace types, but they are completely ostracized. You simply don't see any Pro-German patriotism. They consider themselves Europeans, who just happen to be born in Germany, but could have been born in France, or Italy just as easily.

"I got a kick out of looking back at the United States, and thinking about all the cars with 'America, Love It or Leave It!' stickers on their bumpers. I found that today the people here are really much more radical than the Germans! Why, we're practically fanatics in comparison."

"Berlin is quite a modern, lively city. Nearly everything had to be rebuilt after the war, so most of the buildings are 25 years old or less."

"Because of their dense population each block is a solid building, built right on the street. They just don't have room for large backyards. Each building has many families and most have a courtyard in the center where the children play and women hang out their laundry."

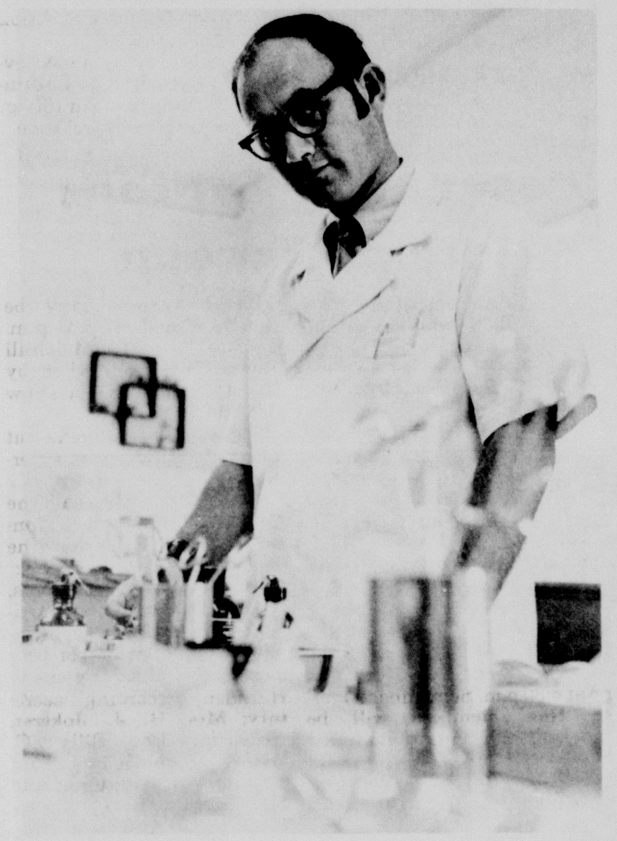
"The big difference in building something in Germany or the U.S. is that in Germany it's much harder to get land, and when you do get it you always pay more for it than you do for the building you put on it.

"The big cities there are very close together. There is some countryside, but it's either densely forested or used for farming. Farmland is really hard to get."

Mobley also told of the differences that he found in the educational systems of Germany and the United States.

"Here," he said, "everyone takes nearly the same thing until they're out of high school. The Germans start giving their students a choice of programming beginning in the fourth grade."

"Those that are definitely university material are programmed into more advanced classes, while those with weaker abilities are put into slower classes. A student then advances at his own pace and can switch back and forth in the programs as much as necessary."



Steve Jones prepares his instruments as the Coffee Memorial Blood Bank clinic opened Tuesday in Canyon. Jones is a technologist with the clinic, which will be open on Tuesdays and Thursdays here at 306 17th St.

Miss Sharman Wins Acclaim

Miss Lynda Sharman, graduate music student in voice at West Texas State University, drew critical acclaim at the recent Sterling Staff Concerts International Competion in Washington, D.C.

"She missed being one of the three winners by one vote," said Miss Elsa Porter, assistant professor of music under whom Miss Sharman studies.

"She received good critiques from the judges," Miss Porter said. "Their only negative comment was on her age."

At 22 Miss Sharman was the youngest of the seven finalists in the biennial competition. The average age was about 25, Miss Porter said. She was the only vocalist selected to compete.

"There was a panel of seven judges and she needed four of the seven votes to be one of the three winners," Miss Porter said. "All the judges encouraged her to try again in 1972."

The competition was sponsored by Mu Phi Epsilon, international professional music sorority for women, and was held as part of the international convention of the group last month.

Miss Sharman of Canyon is working on a Master of Arts Degree with a major in voice at West Texas State. She is expected to receive her degree next May. She plans a recital next April 19 in the Fine Arts Theater on campus.

The drought in Randall County is best illustrated by the dry and cracking bed of the creek just east of Canyon. During early spring fishermen could be seen casting a line in the slowly moving stream. Nothing remains now but stagnant water and a pungent odor.

Canyon Women Reflect On Status Conference

BY CAROL CRAIN

Some 1400 women met with the Governor in Austin Friday and Saturday for the First Annual Status of Women and three Canyon women were among them.

Miss Ruth Cross, member of the Governor's Commission on the Status of Women, Mrs. Grace Warwick, and Mrs. Dorothy Neblett, Canyon civic workers, were all in attendance.

"This conference was one of the finest that I have ever attended," stated Miss Cross, former WTSU Dean of Women. "The background material was well prepared and the conference was thorough."

Mrs. Warwick stated that the conference speakers were "excellent."

The conference, for the most part, was run by women. Margaret Brand Smith of Dallas gave the opening remarks before Governor Smith's Keynote Address.

Bonnie Angelo of Time Magazine in Washington D. C. spoke on "The Changing Image of the American Woman."

The magazine writer stated that "1970 is the year of the woman," Mrs. Warwick reported. Miss Angelo also told the 1400 women that "If you can't join 'em...lick 'em!" speaking about the male contemporaries. Miss Angelo also stated that "the hand that rocks the cradle, should also rock the boat!"

She also pointed out that there were "many clever women who could use their talents if and when they were freed of their families." Certainly, talented women with children would want them taken care of while they pursued an occupation and day care centers were mentioned at this time.

The women at the conference were from different walks of life, different occupations, and different races, as well as different parts of the state, Miss Cross and Mrs. Warwick pointed out, but agreed that all were interested, intelligent individuals.

"The women there were wanting a more cooperative effort than 'liberation'," Miss Cross said. "Nobody that I talked to liked the term 'liberation.' They were more interested in equalization of rights, salaries, and legal situations than being 'liberated'."

One of the chief concerns of the women was that the men would not receive any social security if the wife died, but the wife would get benefits if the husbands died. The conference was in general agreement that the benefits should go both ways.

Mrs. Helena McFarland of Happy also attended the conference.

"I don't think the women had studied enough about the laws before they came to the conference," Mrs. McFarland stated.

She also pointed out that there weren't enough young women present at the conference. "Most of the women were over fifty," Mrs. McFarland said, "myself included. I wish that the ages had been more equally represented."

"I don't know whether I agree about the conference recommeneation of a permanent 15 member board and the spending of $100,000.00 for it," she stated.

The Hon. Sarah T. Hughes stated in her address that "This should not be a conference for study, but for action!" Judge Hughes said that she was "tired of studying."

Speakers at the conference told the group that 51 percent of the registered voters nationwide were women. It was also brought out that there are fewer women in the state and national congress than there were in the 1930's.

Many women don't want to run for Congress, some that do don't meet the qualifications, but women that are qualified should be encouraged to run.

Workshops on financial planning for all women, day care centers, laws pertaining to women, counseling, job opportunities, community service, and family life were held after the addresses.

Miss Cross attended the workshop on day care centers and Mrs. Warwick went to the one on laws. Only about 30 minutes was spent in the workshops and the women felt that many questions were left unanswered.

"This conference gave a lot of background material and was very direct and detailed," Miss Cross stated. "There will be more conferences scheduled later."

The commission voted to present one resolution to the governor.

The resolution was asking the Governor to issue directives and regulations similar to the federal resolutions of 1962 and 1967 instructing and requiring Texas state agencies to make all selections for appointment, advancement and training without regard to sex, for all positions in the State Government and administrative agencies.

Also presented was "An Act to Create A Commission on the Status of Women." The permanent commission would consist of 15 members--2 from the state Senate, 2 from the state House, the Chairman of the Employment Commission, Chairman of the Commission of Public Welfare and 9 members appointed by the Governor, with the consent of the Senate.

The prime function of the commission "shall be to encourage women's organizations and other groups to institute local self-help activities designed to meet women's related needs. The commission shall report its findings and recommendations to the Legislature together with drafts of legislation necessary to carry its recommendations into effect during the first week of each legislative session."

Section 7. states "The sum of one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) is hereby appropriated from the General Fund in the State Treasury to the Commission on the Status of Women to be expended during the years 1971 and 1972."

Some 25 Canyon women were invited to the conference.

Library Fund To Benefit

Canyon's Library building fund will be strengthened again this year by the five Federated Women's Clubs whose council has named this as their project.

Members of the Federated Club's Council are presidents and program chairmen of the five clubs and elected district or state officers.

The clubs involved in the program are the University Study Club, Women's Book Club, Sue Hite Club, Heritage Women's Club, and Canyon Study Club.

The council will again present a series of five book reviews, with each club being responsible for one and setting the day, time, and place during the months of September, October, January, February, and March.

The clubs will take donations after the book review rather than sell individual tickets, as they did last year.

The group will also try, on an individual basis, not sending Christmas cards to local residents, but donating the usual money spent to the library fund.

Mrs. Nolan Henson, president of the University Study Club, announced that their club theme will be "Americanism" and it will follow a newspaper theme. Their first meeting will be September 12, at 7:30 p.m. in Palo Duro Canyon. Husbands and guests may be invited to this meeting. During the year the club will hear a special report on drug abuse, have an art demonstration by Don Ray, and hear Mary Tom Rasco speak on "World Affairs".

The Heritage Woman's Club has as its president Mrs. Orrell Vise. Mrs. Vise said their first meeting will be Septemder 21 at 7 p.m. in the Girl Scout House and the program is called "A Girl Called Nancy." The group this year will also tour the Killgore Children's Psychiatric Center, and later, the museum. Money making projects for the club will continue to go into a fund to purchase an isolette for Neblett Hospital. The club's theme for the year will be "Keys to a Better Environment Through Individual Involvment."

President of the Women's Book Club, Mrs. L.H. Brotherton, has set their first meeting for the evening of September 9 at the Canyon Art Center. Mrs. Glenna Wilson along with Mrs. James P. Cornette will present the program. The group will then go to the home of Mrs. Lon Fanning for a short meeting and dessert.

The Miss Canyon contest and the Halloween Carnival are the two big projects of the Canyon Study Club, Mrs. Weymond Brown, president of the club, said that the first meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Don Max Vars at 2414 12th Ave. on September 15. The organization will also participate in the Mothers March of Dimes and projects of the Federated Council. "Becoming Involved in Our Surroundings" has been designated as the year's theme.

"Awareness, Our Responsibility" will be the theme of the Sue Hite Club this year. Mrs. Crews Henry, president of the club, stated that the first meeting will be a salad supper held at the home of Mrs. Battle Harris September 28 at 7 p.m. Programs for the year will include the annual spring picnic, a tour of the Killgore Children's Psychiatric Center, Robert Ray Henry of Huntsville speaking on prisoner rehabilitation, and other speakers on drug abuse and conservation.

broke his collar bone when he fell on it while attempting to pass. The freshmen scrimmaged each other one of the quarters and it was during that time that Barnes suffered his injury. He will be out of action for eight weeks.

Two players — Don Coker and Stan Hansen — are being held out of practice sessions this week. Coker, a sophomore center, injured his knee last week. Hansen, who started for the past two seasons at linebacker and defensive tackle, also has an injured knee. Both Hansen and Coker are expected to return to action before the season starts.

Kicker Matias Garza, who withdrew from the team last week, has rejoined the squad. He will handle some of the Buffalo placement kicking.

Rick Fangman, who started last fall at defensive guard, has been filling at Hansen's tackle berth. Fangman, a Hereford senior, accidently shot himself in the foot on a hunting trip last spring and missed much of the spring practice.

While Fangman was slowed last spring, transfers Thomas Tate and David Denney took over the guard posts. Fangman is attempting to regain his starting berth.

The other defensive line berth is up for grabs and Aubrey Warren and Alex Davis are the chief contenders. Both are transfers. Davis started at that position in the spring, but was late reporting for duty this fall. Warren played at linebacker last fall.

Wright completed nine of 12 passes for three touchdowns and 147 yards. Swatzel hit eight of 14 for three touchdowns and 154 yards.

Mike Podzemny, a junior end, proveed to be the most effective pass receiver for the Eagles. He carried four of the passes for touchdowns. He pulled down a total of nine of 13 for the game.

John Hoover, a junior halfback, was also an effective receiver, hauling in three of four for a touchdown.

In total offense, the Eagles made 11 first downs rushing and 13 first downs passsing. They gained 197 yards on the ground and 301 yards in the air.

Brownfield didn't score on Canyon's first defensive unit.

The opponents made six first downs, gained 161 yards rushing and 26 yards passsing.

On defense, the Eagles' tough Kelly "Mad Dog" Tinsley lived up to his name as he participated in 16 tackles, eight of which he met head on. Van James, 180-pound junior, got his share of tackles as he was in on 14 take-downs.

dual ballot."

When ballot envelopes are received in the county office they remain sealed and are deposited in a sealed ballot box immediately, Lloyd said. They will remain there until the county committee publically counts the ballots Sept. 15.

Any farm owner, tenant or sharecropper who is of legal age may vote if he has an interest in a farm and is eligible to participate in an ASCS program offered in his community, Lloyd said. Spouses of eligible voters are also eligible to vote.

Lloyd said anyone who believes he is eligible to vote and has not received a ballot by Sept. 5 should get in touch with the county ASCS office at 304 Fifteenth Street in Canyon in order to obtain a ballot.

master Lee Roy Moreland said there will be no city or rural delivery Monday. Windows at the Post Office will be closed.

Meanwhile, at least one of the area's recreation spots is expecting a sizeable Labor Day crowd.

Elon Baker, superintendent of Palo Duro Canyon State Park, said he expects a sizeable crowd, particularly of campers.

Many Canyon merchants will also be closed to observe the holiday.

Band Calendar Sale Set Here

Smity said the project will simply extend an updated and modern two-lane highway from Loop 335 to Amarillo. Modernization of Washington Street south from Loop 335 to Texas 217 has already been accomplished.
